Why Russia Is A Clear And Present Danger to The US-II

One of the most original contemporary Russian thinkers, Sergei Mikheev on Liberalism and its severe crisis (English subs):

He speaks about exaltation of "liberals", of their fanatical belief in the sanctity of what they do when destroying a foundation on which human civilization is based. A liberal, a euphemism for totalitarian, delusion which must be resisted. There is also some talk about fusion, both social and economic. The main issue is where is this golden middle which balances personal and communal, self-interest and obligations to society? Clearly not an a path of modern day financial capitalism which destroys societies both from within and outward--enough to take a look at what this "liberalism" did to the United States and many destroyed by her nations in the last 30 years. A catastrophe. But I also repeat myself, my latest book dedicates its large parts to describing this situation.

Can the United States find a cure? I don't think so, but it seems that Russia is trying to do this. Enough to take a look at staples of Western liberalism such as fanatical radical feminism (third-fourth wave), sexual perversion, even attempts to legalize pedophilia, "reverse" racism--all these phenomena are marginalized or, down right criminalized, in Russia and are espoused by a very narrow strata of the so called Russian "liberda" also known as Creakls (from the word Creative). In today's excellent piece for RIA, Victor Marahovsky, discussing Honk-Kong mutiny defines its "democracy" movement as:

Говоря проще, власть, формальную и неформальную, в деловитом китайском мегаполисе перехватывают граждане, чьи специальности и профессиональные скиллы сводятся к "менеджменту эмоций". Творческая интеллигенция и "активисты" — то есть узкоспециализированные гуманитарии, мастера создания лозунгов и логотипов, цепляния тревожных сердец, написания мобилизационных песен и зажигающих речей.

Tranlation: speaking simply, the power, formal and informal, in the business-oriented Chinese megalopolis is being usurped by citizens whose specialties and professional skills are reducible to "emotion management". Creative intelligentsia and "activists"--that is narrowly specialized humanities-educated masters of slogan-mongering, logotypes, of pinning worrying hearts pins, writing of the mobilization songs and inspirational flaming speeches.

As you may expect, these people have zero capability to run a public restroom, let alone such metropolis as HK. But what does it remind you of? Same here, in the United States which is run by people most of who have zero abilities and skills to run anything and almost all, seem to originate in the law and political pseudo-science field. It always ends in a disaster. Such as Russia of 1990s. You take a look at the modern crop of the American politicians, especially Democrats, this is, frankly, scary. The only thing these people are good at is to how reelect themselves and serve interests of their political donors. Liberalism simply stops producing statesmen. Corruption and mediocrity it produces aplenty, together with snow-flakes and so called "Social Justice Warriors", but statesmen, people who put interests of the country above personal one? No. It also stops producing thinkers of scale. Enough to take a look at Western geopolitical and economic thought in the last 30 years--a collection of, at best, mediocrity, at worst--of pseudo-academic delusion, which tries to avoid a crucial question of the economic and cultural devastation globalism brought upon its main protagonist, the United States. Current, televised live self-destruction of the United States is an irrefutable empirical evidence of a profound, systemic crisis whose roots are in the utter corruption of the American government, which long ago is not by the people and for the people...

The above summary does not do justice to Martyanov's truly seminal book. I can only say that I consider this book as an absolutely indispensable "must read" for every person in the USA who loves his/her country and for every person who believes that wars, especially nuclear ones, must be avoided at all costs.

What do you think?

SmoothieX12, today's CrossTalk was excellent, especially for the point America has become Ukraine in its corruption and dysfunction. The "elites" repeat their endless lies about Russian aggression, invasion of Ukraine, but the key as Mercuris notes is to follow the money. Foreign aid goes to Ukraine, and then back into the pockets of politicians like Biden and others in the EU. Trump stopped the gravy train.

More accurately, Ukraine is well on the way to becoming like the USA. But because most Ukrainians are fundamentally more honest (or, perhaps, less experienced in deceiving themselves and others), the corruption is glaringly obvious in Ukraine, whereas in the USA it has been systematically hidden ever since the 1790s.

Since Buckley's national purge of paleoconservatives from the national conservative movement and his bringing of James Burnham (Trotsky's spokesman in the US until murdered by Stalin) and other ex-Trotskyites into National Review the Republican Party has morphed into as compromised, corrupt, and dollar drenched entity as the Democrats. Both are controlled by the MIC and support the foreign wars. The Republicans are soft-liberals; the Democrats are hard liberals. The neo-cons, the two parties, the CIA, Wall Street, Atlantic Council, NGOs, the MIC, the MSM, they are all riding together as one in the financial capitalist neoliberal economic system that controls the US and will even attempt regime change in the US if they perceive any threat to the neoliberal supremacist trajectory the US has been on since the end of Cold War v1.

Considering the current reality of the system the US probably can no longer produce anything better than the foolishness and stupidity it exhibits.

Oh boy, Buckley--the guy who spouted trivial simplicity with an expression of a smart man. He wanted to frame conservatism into the Cold War liberal pseudo anti-communism, he, certainly, succeeded. Not out of great mind but through a very developed sense of smell for a good remuneration. Since then, the so called "conservative" intellect in the US went down precipitously

Kissinger is not adequate by even remotest degree to modern international order (or disorder). He could be a messenger for Trump but it is as far as it goes. E.g. I was absolutely stupefied by the fact, which I learned only recently, that Strobe Talbott's main curator on Russia was superb Isiah Berlin. Boy, talk about excellent schooling being wasted--Talbot turned out to be a conceited arrogant ass who learned absolutely nothing. here is one of

Asia Times About The Book

In Losing Military Supremacy, his latest, groundbreaking book, crack Russian military-naval analyst Andrei Martynov deconstructs in detail how, "the United States faces two nuclear and industrial superpowers, one of which fields a world-class armed forces. If the military-political, as opposed to merely economic, alliance between Russia and China is ever formalized – this will spell the final doom for the United States as a global power."
